REV. HORGER MAKES SOME EXPLANATIONS

Why I Joined the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene

In a previous article under the above caption I briefly outlined my early religious training, conversion and sanctification, the latter occurring about twenty-three years ago—about the year A. D. 1892—and after thoroughly satisfying my mind that sanctification as a second instantaneous work of grace was taught in both the Old and New Testament scriptures, by commandment, by promise and by example, I then began to read the most devout and intelligent authors on the subject, especially those of the Methodist church.

These articles are written by an honest heart full of love for God and all men, especially those of the household of faith regardless of denominational lines. May God bless the effort.

Licklider-Ward

Thursday evening of last week at about 7 o'clock, Mr. P. M. Licklider and Miss Ennia Ward were happily united in marriage by Rev. W. L. Martin, at his residence.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Licklider, and is well and favorably known. The young bride is the pretty and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Ward of the Yancey neighborhood. Mr. Licklider is to be congratulated upon winning such a fair and lovable help-mate for their journey on the matrimonial sea.

A brief honeymoon trip was taken to San Antonio and the happy young couple are now residing near Yancey.

The Anvil Herald takes great pleasure in joining their many friends in wishing them "bon voyage."

1st. That all men are "conceived and born in sin," and therefore by nature partakers of the corruption which is naturally engendered by the offspring of Adam, whereby man is very far gone from original righteousness, and is of his own nature inclined to evil, and that continually.

2nd. That all men are called to repent of, confess and forsake their sins, and to seek the Lord until they obtain regeneration, pardon and the new birth, wrought and witnessed by the Holy Spirit.

3rd. That whosoever is born of the spirit is an heir of God, and joint heir with Jesus Christ, and is therefore entitled to, and commanded to seek and obtain the Baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire, as did the believers. Acts, 2:2-4; 8:17 and 19:6.

Special emphasis is placed on the fact that the Baptism with the spirit is always received SUBSEQUENT to the new birth, and is always INSTANTANEOUS and therefore, says Wesley, "a second blessing properly so called."

It is also maintained that the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, sanctifying the heart, is a different and deeper work than that of the new birth, burning and purging out the last remains of the innate fallen nature called in scripture "sin in me," "the body of sin," "thy old man," "filthiness of spirit," "carnal mind," etc. This principle cannot be reformed, pardoned nor transformed by the new birth, but is removed only by purging with Divine fire.

It is further maintained that all who are truly baptized with the spirit are not only purified by the spirit, but also filled with the spirit, and thus prepared for a more efficient service unto God for the advancement of His cause and kingdom.

The above outlined doctrines were believed and taught by the Methodists during the first one hundred years of their unparalleled evangelistic career, even until about the time of the civil war of 1861. But while her written creed has not been changed, her ministry and laity have drifted from the Wesleyan doctrine, in particular the doctrine of human depravity, and more especially that of an instantaneous sanctification to be obtained after the new birth.

The above being true, about fifteen years ago there was organized a body of believers of the Wesleyan faith in California called "The Church of the Nazarene;" also another in the Northern States called "The Pentecostal Church;" and then another in the Southern States called "The Holiness Church." Then about five years ago the three churches were united and is now called "The Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene."

They have adopted as their creed the Wesleyan theory of salvation—all of it and no more.

Therefore, they are in doctrine one and the same as the old-time Methodist, and I, having been in the experience of sanctification for more than twenty years, a believer in and a zealous advocate of, the Wesleyan doctrine it was a natural and easy step for me to join "The Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene." My chief reason for so long was and is, that I thereby might bear testimony to my children, my brethren and my friends so long as I live, and after death, so long as the memory of my life and conduct shall linger in their minds, to my undying faith and fidelity to the old Methodist doctrine—the Wesleyan theory of salvation which I believe to be the truest and most faithful interpretation of the plan of salvation ever made since the days of the Apostles.

These articles are written by an honest heart full of love for God and all men, especially those of the household of faith regardless of denominational lines. May God bless the effort.

At Old Grell Place at New Fountain E. C. OEFINGER

The Owner Reserves the Right to Reject Any or All Bids

A slick artist, who represented himself as the head of the construction gang that is now overhauling the telephone line, "worked" some of our citizens a short while ago of various small sums. This fellow was an artist in his line. His gang was short-handed and he had a contract that would take three years to finish, by which time he hoped to complete the line to Denver, Colorado. He hired several new men and told them when to show up to begin work, incidentally collecting $2.50 as the initiation fee into the labor organization that was doing the work. His gang would be hungry and tired when they reached Hondo so he made arrangements for board for the gang, and as he was already hungry he took up board immediately. The day for arrival of the gang and for the new men to begin work arrived. The new men showed up but the man with the big job was "conspicuous by his absence," also the amounts that had been paid as initiation fees, likewise the money for his board bill. We understand this is not the first place that has been visited by this artist, but it is pretty safe to say that should we by any chance fall into the hands of certain men in this section the doctors here will have "governor jobs" in making repairs to one slick artist's physiognomy in an effort to make it resemble that of a human being.

F. F. F. Party.

On Monday evening Miss Mabel Hollaway delightfully entertained the Triple F's with a "movie" party.

After the guests had assembled at the home of Mrs. J. W. Hollaway they enjoyed some of the very latest musical compositions rendered by Miss Mabel.

Next came the "movies," always a delight to the F. F. F. Girls, and then the refreshments, consisting of cakes and ice cream served at Mrs. Hutzler's. After which they departed, all having had a jolly time.

Those present were: Misses Bennie Hurt, Lorine and Lucile de Montel, Lizzie Schuehle, Marie and Dora Filleman, Ella Hardt, the hostess and a guest of the Club, Miss Elsie Rothe.

The next meeting will be with Miss Hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Heyo Schuewes Married Fifty Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Heyo Schuewes celebrated their golden wedding Thursday, September 2.

The family and guests assembled on the galleries and on the lawn, the wedding service was read and a short sermon preached by Rev. P. H. Hensch of New Fountain, after which Mr. and Mrs. Schuewes expressed their appreciation of the kind remarks extended them by Rev. Hensch. Rev. F. Bohmfalk of Gonzales then delivered a short address which was enjoyed by all.

Rev. G. W. Muennink, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Schuewes, delivered a short address, after which he presented Mr. and Mrs. Schuewes with a gold-headed cane and gold-handle umbrella, gifts of their children. After which all in attendance sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

After the services, an informal dinner was served on the lawn, the dinner consisted of five kinds of meat and several different vegetables, lemon and jello with whipped cream. An ice course was served about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Over one hundred guests were present.

There were twelve children born to this couple, two of whom died in infancy. The children are: John H. Schuewes of Hondo, Mrs. C. T. Mumme of Von Ormy, Mrs. C. W. Fuos of San Antonio, Mrs. A. E. Saathoff of D'Hanis, Mrs. L. A. Stiegler of Hondo, Mr. Louis Schuewes of New Fountain, Mrs. H. H. Heyen of Lockhart, Frank Schuewes of Hondo, Mrs. G. W. Muennink of Houston and O. W. Mr. and Mrs. Schuewes are among the highest esteemed citizens in Medina County.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Stiegler was christened at the close of the service and the name given the little fellow was Chester Vernon.

The Oil Situation.

Parties here have a proposition from a reliable well-drilling man offering to go to a depth of 2,000 feet, for the sum of $5,000.00 and a one-half interest in the project if oil should be found. This man is to select the location for his well, and the company is to obtain a lease on as much as twenty acres adjoining the same.

Geologists who have examined the formation of the earth about two and one-half miles west of here have pronounced the indications for oil to be very favorable.

These parties propose to organize a company with a capital stock of $1,000,000, every cent of which will be used for the purpose of boring a test well, and a contract with this man will be entered into and he will be required to give bond to comply with his contract.

J. G. Heyen is organizing the company and it is expected there will be no difficulty in raising the desired amount of money and organizing the company.

Notice.

Rev. J. E. L. Moore, President of Central Nazarene University, Hamlin, Texas, will preach at the church of the Nazarene Tuesday, Sept. 7th, at 3:30 P. M. Also Tuesday night.

SHARP WITS TURNED TABLES

Moses Mendelssohn, Philosopher, Cleverly Evens Up Matters With Number of Feasting Cavaliers.

Moses Mendelssohn, who was the victim of much abuse, but whose sharp wit always turned the tables on his persecutors, was once sitting in an inn where a number of cavaliers were feasting. They observed the philosopher, and in order to annoy him sent him a plate of apple parings which remained from their repast.

The philosopher accepted the gift gravely and seemed plunged in thought. Then the cavaliers suddenly noticed that there were tears in his eyes.

"Why are you crying?" asked one of them.

"I am thinking of something my dead mother once said to me," replied Moses. "When I was a child I had a very sweet tooth, and mother tried to discourage me. Once when she caught me stealing some sweets he said: 'My son, if you keep on this way you shall have to be content some day with the leavings of pigs.'"

"But why are you crying?" reiterated the cavalier.

"Ahas!" responded the philosopher, "her prophecy has come true!"

Same as Now.

Mrs. Styles—This paper says in the days of old Rome a woman's character was known by her dress. The toga was worn by the men, but the stola was the raiment for the women.

Mr. Styles—And I suppose it was the custom for the wife to have half a dozen stolas to the old man's one toga.

Very True.

Mr. Bacon—I see in the Arctic region a man who wants a divorce leaves home in anger and does not return for several days. The wife takes the hint and departs.

Mr. Bacon—But how is the wife to know if he wants a divorce or has gone away to avoid the housecleaning?

If.

Peasant—Yes; an' he was makin' a mint o' money. If he'd lived he'd be a gentleman this day!—Judge.

His Excuse.

"You were a very long time going on that errand, Tommy?"

"Yes, mother, but you see I'm entered in a race at school tomorrow, and I wanted to save my speed."

"No, and apparently he doesn't feel the weight of his stolas, either."

Hurrying a Girl.

"I notice you hustle hurriedly down when Cholly calls."

"Yes; he always brings me a box of candy. But if I keep him waiting he'll begin eating it."

To The Public.

"I feel that I owe the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy a word of gratitude," writes Mrs. T. N. Witherall, Gowanda, N. Y. After taking a dose of it I had not long to wait for relief as it benefited me almost immediately." Obtainable everywhere.

Elocution would have more value if, in addition to teaching us how to speak, it would teach us when.

Biliousness and Constipation.

It is certainly surprising that any woman will endure the miserable feelings caused by biliousness and constipation, when relief is so easily had and at so little expense. Mrs. Chas. Peck, Gates, N. Some people never quarrel with themselves so long as they can find any one else to quarrel with.

Best Treatment for Burns.

If for no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price, 25 cents. For sale by All Dealers.

Unfortunately, the fellow who is always willing to lend a hand generally has an empty one.

Worth Their Weight in Gold.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets and found them to be just as represented, a quick relief for headaches, dizzy spells and other symptoms denoting a torpid liver and a disordered condition of the digestive organs. They are worth their weight in gold," writes Miss Clara A. Driggs, Elba, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

It takes a philosopher to say "Better late than never" when he misses the last train.

None Equal to Chamberlain's.

"I have tried most all of the cough cures and find that there is none that equal Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has never failed to give me prompt relief," writes W. V. Warner, Middletown, Ind. When you have a cold give this remedy a trial and see for yourself what a splendid medicine it is. Obtainable everywhere.

When a man looks down on us, we can't help hoping he will get dizzy and fall off.

Good for Biliousness.

"I took two of Chamberlain's Tablets last night, and I feel fifty percent better than I have for weeks, says J. J. Firestone of Allegan, Mich. "They are certainly a fine article for biliousness." For sale by All Dealers.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Clarence Ousley

On the Law of Supply and Demand

I am amazed that so long the cotton industry should have suffered the grave disadvantage of an entirely one-sided representation concerning supply and demand. We need not deceive ourselves with the notion that by any act of legislation or any concert of action we can suspend the trade law of supply and demand, but we cannot ascertain economic value without knowing demand as well as supply. When you plant your cotton in the spring the Federal Government counts your acres and publishes to the consuming world the precise figures of cotton acreage in the United States which furnishes two-thirds of the production and thereby constitutes two-thirds of the productive influence upon the cotton market. The government reports the condition of the crop and continues month by month to report its condition until the crop is picked and then it begins in September to count and report the bales that are ginned and continues to count and report the bales every month until the ginning is concluded. So that from the time the crop is planted until the last bale is ginned the buying world knows by accurate official representation the acreage, the condition and output from month to month, and yet at no time does the producing world know the condition of the consumption of the product.

Those of us who have been laboring in this field have made repeated efforts by formal communication and by personal interview with congressional and administrative officials at Washington but have been utterly unable to obtain the desired results.

I am compelled to state this blunt fact, not in any captious spirit but for the purpose of demonstrating to you that relief in this important particular must come through the cotton states themselves.

We Democrats have talked so long about State sovereignty as a negative quality in resistance to the encroachments of the Federal Government and as a bulwark against the usurpation and the tyranny, actual or potential, which follow from the concentration of political power in the hands of the Federal government, that we have forgotten the positive qualities of State sovereignty. We have lost sight of the fact that the State possesses all powers except in so far as it has conferred certain powers upon the Federal Government and in so far as the sovereign people have reserved certain powers to themselves. Sovereignty in the political sense means state omnipotence within the limits of human endeavor. Except as to the limitations to which I have already referred, the sovereignty of the State is as complete and as boundless as the sovereignty of the monarch who assumes the divine right of kings. In an emergency of this kind, the State is warranted, and, indeed, under the very obligation of legislation, this body is commanded to conserve the public welfare by any device of legislation that does not palpably offend the Constitution.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

W. D. Lewis

On Mission of the Farmers' Union

W. D. Lewis, president of the Texas Farmers' Union, whose tenure of office expires by limitation in August, has issued the following farewell statement to the Texas farmers:

The Farmers' Union stands before the public of Texas today proud as a King; glorying in its achievements and boasting of its possibilities of rendering a service to the men who follow the plow. The Union sounds the bugle call of organization, summoning every yeoman to rally around its colors. In business it stands for education and co-operation; in the home it stands for Sally and the babies; in government it stands for constructive statesmanship. At the moment it directs the attention of the farmers to warehousing and financing the present cotton crop. Fellow farmers arise and salute King Cotton, a sovereign in whose reign the prosperity of this State is involved and a ruler whose scepter turns the fleecy fibre into gold. A King at whose loom nature weaves, and an imperial potentate at whose shrine millions kneel and sing his praise. Strike for your home, your family and your country by joining the Union and becoming a part of the great economic force that is uplifting this state and nation. The Farmers' Union is the plowmen's hope. Without organization he can neither help himself nor be helped by others, and through organization he is all powerful.

When the Texas Farmers' Union holds its annual convention in Houston, August 3rd, every farmer in Texas should pause and bow his head in honor of the men gathered there to render a patriotic and unselfish service to agriculture. This organization, born in the cotton fields of Texas, has grown until, geographically, it covers almost the whole of the United States, and economically, it deals with every question in which the welfare of the men who bear their backs to the summer sun are involved. It has battled for a better marketing system, rural credits, cheap money, diversification, scientific production, agricultural legislation and has carried on its work of education and co-operation in season and out.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of Texas brings the question of organization squarely before every farmer in this state.

The farmers of the nation contribute more and get less from government than any other class of business. They have better securities and pay a higher rate of interest than any other line of industry. They market more products and have less to say in fixing the price than any other business, and they have had more political bunccombe, and less constructive legislation, than any other class of people. The farmers can only acquire such influence in business, in government and economics as will enable them to share equitably the fruits of their labor through organization, and every farmer on Texas soil who desires to help himself and his fellow plowmen, should rally around the Union.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

J. A. Kemp

On Proper Marketing of Cotton

When the farmers of this nation tore down their warehouses and granaries, closed their smoke houses and nailed down the cellar doors and turned their products over to speculators to hold until the consumer demanded them, they ceased to become a factor in fixing prices, for without the facilities to hold their products they lose the power to bargain. It is the mission of the Farmers' Union to rebuild storage facilities and turn the keys over to the farmers so that the prices may more nearly be governed by supply and demand. Mr. J. A. Kemp, President of the Texas Cotton Conference, in discussing the proper methods of marketing cotton, said in part:

"We should not only build warehouses, but we should encourage the farmers to put their cotton in them. This must be done by the bankers and business men of the state and it is up to them to get busy. Every business man in Texas knows that it is wrong to force cotton to sell in September and that it is wrong to cause it to be thrown on the market at any time in amounts larger than the market demands, yet this thing has been going on in this country ever since cotton has been a factor in the crops of the South.

Cotton is the very backbone of this country. When the cotton crop is off and the price bad the whole state suffers. When cotton is thrown on the market in a lump the price is forced down and Texas is hurt just as badly as though the price were down owing to bad staple of an off year crop. But as though the price were down owing to bad staple of an off year crop. But as though the price were down owing to bad staple of an off year crop. But as though the price were down owing to bad staple of an off year crop. But as though the price were down owing to bad staple of an off year crop.

We must build warehouses all over Texas this summer and when the crop is bailed it can be stored in good fire and storm proof structures, making a receipt for a bale of cotton as good collateral as the best bank note in the Federal Reserve Bank.

The bankers of Texas can finance the Texas cotton crop and I believe they will demonstrate this fact this Fall. We have the money to carry the cotton over. The thing is that the farmer and the banker must get together. It is a mistake to wait until the cotton is picked and then start to bring about conditions for its financing.

The planter must learn that it is to his interest to take proper care of his cotton and that this care can be had only through warehousing. The warehouse receipts will mean ready cash. Look what was done last Fall and the start was a late one. The price of cotton was raised in spite of the influences to hold it down. I do not contend that cotton should bring an abnormal price, but I do believe that it should bring a price that will give the farmer a good return on his investment. This can be done by feeding it to the market as the mills call for it."

A PERFECT NUMBER

Seven Figured Largely in the Wooing and Wedding of Arthur Raymond.

By ANNE DOUBLEDAY.
(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Arthur Raymond closed his desk and, locking the door of his law office, went slowly down the street. His brisk step had lost its elasticity and there were white threads in his dark hair.

At the white gate of Hiram Tweedy's house, Arthur turned in and went up the path between the stiff rows of box. From the garden came the sickly-sweet smell of day lilies standing like white sentinels among their patches of bright green leaves.

Hiram Tweedy was sitting on the narrow front porch, smoking his evening pipe.

"How are you, Arthur?" he asked cordially.

"Good evening," responded Arthur, sitting down on the steps. "I don't suppose you've heard anything?"

Hiram removed the pipe from between the thin line of his hard lips.

"Nope, not a word. I was telling Ella this morning that Amy was an ungrateful minx! I'm really ashamed to own she's my niece."

"She hasn't done anything except go away to earn her own living," retorted Arthur; "and you taunted her into that, Hiram. You admitted it yourself."

Hiram laughed raspingly.

"Well, Amy's such a little spitfire I just couldn't help it, anyhow," he admitted. "Lord! I didn't expect the girl would flare up and run away. Why, she might have run away from me and her Aunt Ella, but I'll be hanged if it shows much sense in her to run away from her best fellow."

Arthur arose. "Well, if there's no news from her, I'll go on. I suppose you're making every effort you can to find out where she went," he added.

"Of course, I am, Arthur. She's my own niece, even if she ain't treated me right," returned Hiram in an injured tone. "Nobody knows what I've done for that girl."

"Amy has only lived with you two years," observed Arthur coldly. "Since her father's death, it has always been understood that Amy's help here has more than paid for her board."

"I'm the one who ought to know!" retorted Hiram irascibly.

Arthur turned without another word and went down the street, his head bent a little thoughtfully.

Hiram smoked on unconcernedly until a thin, sallow woman appeared behind the screen door that led into the house.

"Was that Arthur Raymond?" she asked curiously.

"Yes—asking about Amy."

"He's a goose to bother about her," remarked Mrs. Tweedy, sourly. "She didn't care enough about him to stay here."

Hiram stilled her voice with a wave of his pipe.

"You better keep still, Ella; I heard what you said to Amy that night—I heard you telling her that Arthur Raymond was tired of her and that he was sweet on that little Weeks girl! I expect it was that that drove her away—more than any of my teachings."

"The very ideal!" quavered Mrs. Tweedy tearfully. "If that isn't just like a man—always blaming every thing on his wife!"

"I know what you said, and I know what I said, and I know that the girl packed a few clothes and went away before we was up the next morning. Is supper ready?"

Arthur Raymond went toward his boarding place with the ever-present vague hope that in the gathering of good gossips around the hospitable board of Miss Milly Brown he might hear some news about Amy. He was conscious that the Tweedys entertained a hostile feeling toward him. Why, he did not know; only he was aware of it.

His hopes were verified.

It appeared that Miss Milly Brown's sister was the wife of the station agent, and that afternoon Miss Brown had made a long deferred call upon her relative. She came home primed with a bit of news that Arthur Raymond seized upon eagerly.

"The Tweedys are so close-mouthed about where Amy went it would make you laugh," remarked Miss Brown, as she ladled out generous portions of clam chowder. "Just as if folks weren't bound to find out sooner or later. My sister says that Jabez told her that Amy Flood had gone to New York—he sold her a ticket that morning. She went on the 7:07 train."

Arthur Raymond didn't listen to the remainder of the gossip. The magic words, or numbers, "seven-seven" were an inspiration to him. Seven was his lucky number; without being superstitious on any other subject, Arthur stoutly claimed that the number seven was his mascot always; all through his life it had appeared at important periods. He had even been born on the seventh day of the seventh month in the year 1877, and once, when he was quite young, had declared he wouldn't marry until he possessed seven thousand dollars.

"Well," said Arthur, "today is the 7th of July—the seventh month, it is also my thirty-seventh birthday. I believe we had better be married at seven o'clock this evening to keep the magic number on the family records."

There was a tinge of irony in the fact that he now had the seven thousand dollars, but the only girl he wanted to marry had gone away without a word of farewell or explanation.

But Miss Brown's news kindled his expiring hope of finding Amy Flood.

The magic numbers seven-seven danced before his eyes as he hunted out a time-table and discovered with a thrill that the number of the train had been 77.

So Amy Flood had left for New York on train 77 at 7:07 a.m.

"I'll find her," decided Arthur, and he made preparations to leave town on the same train early the next morning. All of which might have been superstitious nonsense, but at the same time it was very human.

Train 77 landed Arthur Raymond in New York city at noon of a hot July day. In the crowded railroad station he began to realize what a task he had set before him, but, clinging obstinately to his magic number, Arthur went to the nearest hotel, and after surprising the room clerk by requesting room 77 if it was vacant, he took his key and went up in the elevator with a degree of satisfaction.

After lunch he started on his quest. How was he to pick out Amy Flood from a city of countless girls?

"I'll begin with the shops," decided Arthur, and, having compiled a list of the great dry goods firms from the city directory, he set forth.

His first day's work was discouraging. He had visited five shops and not one could boast of the name of Amy Flood on its pay roll. Amys there were in plenty, but none answered his description.

The second and third days were as fruitless as the first. Arthur was beginning to lose hope. He even inserted an advertisement in the personal column of a morning newspaper, wording it carefully so that no inquisitive eye at home might detect its authorship.

The morning of the seventh day found Arthur starting on his quest with renewed zest. On this day of the magic number something might be expected to happen.

There was a big store on Sixth avenue which he had not yet visited, and another one near by which had declined to render him any assistance or to give him any information whatever. He would go there again and question some of the clerks. No one who had once seen Amy Flood could forget her—Arthur felt sure of that.

The Sixth avenue store yielded no return, so he paid a second visit to the other one. This time he did not seek the employment department, as had been his custom; he diligently visited every sales department of the store.

Red-haired girls bobbed before him from behind laces and ribbons, but not Amy. At last he stood dejectedly before the jewelry counter, looking blankly at the glittering array of ornaments. Two of the salesgirls were talking.

"Number 77 is home sick," remarked one of them.

"She is? I'm sorry for her if she's left to old Goggin's care! Once I was sick for a few days and she charged me double board for sending Hilda up with my meals—such meals—skim milk and burned toast and such tea—you couldn't have told it from water except that they called it tea!"

"The poor kid's homesick, that's what's the matter with her," went on the first speaker in a kindly tone. "I say to her last night, 'Now, see here 77, why don't you write home and tell your folks what you're up against—sure they'll send for you to come home.' What do you think she said? Said she didn't have any home—wouldn't that jar you? Most everybody's got some kin somewhere!"

Arthur was listening shamelessly. One of the girls noted his interest and stepped forward.

"Can I show you something, sir?" she asked.

"No—but you can tell me; you were speaking of a girl you called 77—that is her store number of course?"

"Yes, sir."

"Does her name happen to be Amy Flood?"

"Right! Are you some of her folks?" asked the girl bluntly.

For answer Arthur took out his watch and showed his Amy's fair face photographed on the inside case.

"That's her—that's 77!" cried the girl eagerly. "Say, she needs some of her folks—like enough Mrs. Goggin wouldn't let you in to see her, but wait till noon time and you can go home with us, and then—well, I guess 77 will be mighty glad to see a home."

Arthur thanked the kind-hearted girls and, having arranged to meet them at one o'clock, he tried to kill the intervening time by the purchase of an absurdly large basket of luxuries to tempt the appetite of an invalid.

Mrs. Goggin's hideous parlor witnessed a tender meeting. Amy, no longer white and wan, but a lovely rose pink with happiness, greeted the beloved young lawyer in a manner that quite satisfied him.

"When the store gave me that number, 77," said Amy, "I remembered your superstition regarding it, and I thought something lovely must happen to me because of it—but the days went by and I began to believe that Aunt Ella was right after all—that you were fond of Madie Weeks, and that your engagement to me galled you. But, now it is all right! Oh, Arthur, how can we do honor to that precious number?"

"Well," said Arthur, "today is the 7th of July—the seventh month, it is also my thirty-seventh birthday. I believe we had better be married at seven o'clock this evening to keep the magic number on the family records."

There was a tinge of irony in the fact that he now had the seven thousand dollars, but the only girl he wanted to marry had gone away without a word of farewell or explanation.

But Miss Brown's news kindled his expiring hope of finding Amy Flood.

AFTERMATH OF WAR

Unexploded Shells a Source of Great Danger.

Are Destroyed With Special Pains When They Are Discovered, But Undoubtedly Will Cause Death of Many Deaths.

The unexploded shell is one of war's cruellest dangers, since it may kill or maim the innocent and unexpected—perhaps years after the fighting is all over and peace reigns in the land. Even when unexploded projectiles are seen and recognized as such, their removal or destruction is attended with great danger. Mr. H. Vigneron tells how the French army in the field is accustomed to deal with this element. He writes:

"All shells fired by artillery do not explode, perhaps because their fuses are not sensitive enough, or because the ground is too soft. It would seem that from this special point of view the prize must be awarded to the Germans for the largest number of non-exploded shells. This is so true that soldiers on the march are afraid to run across these shells and that, where the Germans have passed, care must be taken lest the wagons strike an unexploded shell with too violent a shock. The danger persists after the war is over; and, unfortunately, for long years we shall have to deplore, from time to time, the death of imprudent persons who have tried to 'unscrew a fuse' or carry away an unexploded shell."

"In fact, every shell, even if its fuse is incapable of working and causing its explosion, is in a dangerous condition.

By one method of doing away with them the charge of explosive intended to burst the shell is placed on the projectile, parallel to its axis.

At the right and left piles of earth are made with the hands and joined over the top, pressing lightly on the part just over the charge to assure contact with the

SHARP WITS TURNED TABLES

Moses Mendelsohn, Philosopher, Cleverly Evens Up Matters With Number of Feasting Cavaliers.

Moses Mendelsohn, who was the victim of much abuse, but whose sharp wit always turned the tables on his persecutors, was once sitting in an inn where a number of cavaliers were feasting. They observed the philosopher, and in order to annoy him sent him a plate of appetizers which remained from their repast.

The philosopher accepted the gift gravely and seemed plunged in thought. Then the cavaliers suddenly noticed that there were tears in his eyes.

"Why are you crying?" asked one of them.

"I am thinking of something my dead mother once said to me," replied Moses. "When I was a child I had a very sweet tooth, and mother tried to discourage me. Once when she caught me stealing some sweets he said: 'My son, if you keep on this way you shall have to be content some day with the leavings of pigs.'"

"But why are you crying?" reiterated the cavalier.

"Alas!" responded the philosopher, "her prophecy has come true!"

Very True.

To The Public.

"I feel that I owe the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy a word of gratitude," writes Mrs. T. N. Witherall, Gowanda, N. Y. Elocution would have more value if, in addition to teaching us how to speak, it would teach us when.

Biliousness and Constipation.

It is certainly surprising that any woman will endure the miserable feelings caused by biliousness and constipation, when relief is so easily had and at so little expense. Mrs. Chas. Peck, Gates, N. Unfortunately, the fellow who is always willing to lend a hand generally has an empty one.

Worth Their Weight in Gold.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets and found them to be just as represented, a quick relief for headaches, dizzy spells and other symptoms denoting a torpid liver and disordered condition of the digestive organs. They are worth their weight in gold," writes Miss Clara A. Driggs, Elba, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

It takes a philosopher to say "Better late than never" when he misses the last train.

THE OBJECT OF DISCIPLINE

Speech Before the Hondo Mothers' Club, by Prof. P. B. Peterson, Superintendent Hondo High School.

Madam President, Ladies of the Mothers' Club and Fellow Teachers:

Webster tells us that discipline means 1. To educate; to develop by instruction and exercise; to train. 2. To accustom to regular and systematic action; to train to act together under orders; to teach subordination; to form a habit of obedience; to drill. 3. To reprove by correction and penal methods; to chastise; to correct. 4. To inflict ecclesiastical censures upon. As I understand it my subject will imply or include all the divisions mentioned above except number 4.

The school is greatly concerned with the preservation and the dissemination of knowledge; but it is even more deeply interested in affecting permanently and in most desirable ways the conduct of the pupils. What one knows, is not half so important as what one is. What one knows, in fact, derives its importance from its relationship to what one is and to what one is to be, for knowledge put to malevolent uses makes one, as Quintilian says, "not a soldier, but a robber."

Rousseau says, "The common vocation of man is manhood, and, regardless of the vocation of the pupil's parents, he is summoned by nature to the duties of human life. To live is the trade which should be taught in the schools. The art of living is the greatest of all the arts, the finest of the fine arts. It is through the practice of this art in ever-widening and ever-varying forms of righteousness and beauty that human culture and civilization are preserved and developed."

There is a difference in the purposes of punishments in the school room and the state. In the school room punishment seeks to correct and to reform the individual. The state may punish to avenge a wrong, to satisfy justice, or to serve as an example to others. The school deals with immature minds and irresponsible beings, the state deals with mature minds and responsible beings, capable of weighing and judging.

By punishment we mean a penalty imposed by some one in authority for some wrong act. The penalty may be mental or physical. Physical punishment may be used upon children when other means fail, or when the child is still undeveloped in judgment. Parents must, as a rule, occasionally use physical punishment as a means of correcting their children because they are lacking in the judgment of riper years and yet must be taught to mind.

The greatest punishment is that which touches the soul. Physical pain is temporary, but mental pain may last for a lifetime. There are wounds deeper than any rod can inflict, wounds which do not heal, the wounds of sarcasm, suspicion, treachery and misconception. Teachers must guard themselves against his misconduct by a reformation of life. If punishment does not lead to reformation, then the second state of him who is punished is worse than the first, and the problem of his management increases manifold in difficulty.

In seeking to reform the pupil, the teacher must ever bear in mind that intellectual and moral results are to be gained through the use of intellectual and moral means. Mere external and physical punishment does not lead to reformation. The teacher will, therefore, discard altogether, if possible, the infliction of corporal punishment. He will, furthermore, put under the ban all forms of degrading punishment such as the dunce-cap, the gag, the use of ridicule, sarcasm and opprobrious reproofs in public. The offender's misdeed is in his will, and the punishment should affect his will.

"The great triumph of school discipline," says Fitch, a commonsense English schoolmaster, "is to do without punishment altogether. And to this end it is essential that we watch those forms of offense which occur oftenest, and see, if by some better arrangements of our own, temptation to wrong may be diminished and offenses prevented. If your government is felt to be based on high principles, to be vigilant and entirely just, to be strict without being severe, to have no element of caprice or fitfulness in it; if the public opinion of the school is so formed that a scholar who does wrong is unpopular, you will find not only that all the more degrading forms of personal chastisement are unnecessary, but that the need of punishment in any form will steadily disappear."

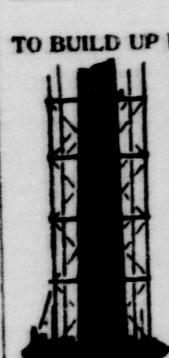

2. Punishment should always foster self-control and self-respect. Self-government alone is worthy of an intelligent man. The punishment which does not stimulate the wrong-doer to forsake the wrong and do the right, is a failure. Any punishment which crushes manhood is fiendish.

3. Punishment should be the natural consequence of the offense. Such punishments are corrective. The relation of the punishment to the offense should be studied carefully before it is administered. Spencer maintains that a natural punishment has the following advantages over an artificial punishment: (1) It is unavoidable and inevitable. (2) It is proportionate to the degree of offense—"to the degree in which the organic laws have been transgressed."

"A slight accident brings a slight pain, a more serious one, a greater pain." (3) It is "constant, direct, unhesitating and not to be escaped." "No threats, but a silent, rigorous performance. If the child runs a pin into its finger, pain follows. If it does it again, there is again the same result, and so on perpetually. In all its dealings with surrounding inorganic nature it finds this unswerving persistence, which listens to no excuse, and from which there is no appeal; and very soon recognizing this stern though beneficent discipline it becomes extremely careful not to transgress." (4) Natural punishments "hold through life." "It is by the experimentally gained knowledge of the natural consequences that men and women are checked when they go wrong."

4. Punishments must always be reasonable, but certain. Punishments which are too severe arouse sympathy for the one punished, and lose much of their good effect. Mild punishments are most effective if they are certain to follow wrong doing.

5. Punishments should be inflicted deliberately. Hasty pun-

Grateful Mothers Tell Experiences

Mrs. T. Neuner, Eau Claire, Wis., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar Company cured my boy of a very severe attack of croup after other remedies failed. Our milkman cured his children of whooping cough. I commend it to everyone, as we know from our own experience that it is a wonderful remedy for coughs, croup and whooping cough."

Mrs. E. Gilkeson, Youngstown, O., writes: "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continually. I tried lots of cough remedies, but it didn't get any better. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar to me. The first dose we had relieved the inflammation in her throat, and after using one or two more, she was better. The strength of this remedy has been found for adults as for children. It is relief for irritated and tickling coughs, tight and sore chest, grippe and bronchial coughs."

THE OBJECT OF DISCIPLINE

ishments are seldom effective. Both teacher and pupil should have time for reflection, when possible. There may be times of open insult when punishments must be prompt to be effective, but with wise management such occasions are rare. Parents and tea-hers must guard against rash and hasty punishments.

6. The teacher must punish with regret. Sympathy for the often-for-alls to the effectiveness of the punishment, provided the sympathy is not of the sort that excuses rather than punishes. The child knows with him, and this is one of the uplifting forces in the child's life. It is true that the principle of vicarious suffering is the root of all spiritual healing. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

7. All punishment should be made an educative means. It should be at all times corrective. It should bring the pupil to a sense of wrong doing, else it is worthless. The severest punishment must be a means to an end, the end being an improvement in the pupil's conduct. The best teachers govern so effectively that little punishment is needed.

Summing up the object of discipline is: To so train and develop the child mentally, morally and physically for the broadest sphere of usefulness in life, which he is capable of filling, and also, for him to be able to adapt himself to all circumstances and environments that might fall to his lot.

A Wonderful Antiseptic.

Germs and infection aggravate ailments and retard healing. Stop that infection at once. Kill the germs and get rid of the poisons. For this purpose a single application of Sloan's Liniment not only kills the pain but destroys the germs. This neutralizes infection and gives nature assistance by overcoming congestion and gives chance for the free and normal flow of the blood. Sloan's Liniment is an emergency doctor and should be kept constantly on hand. 25c, 50c. The $1.00 size contains six times as much as the 25c.

I. N. Johnson
No. 1775 vs.
Unknown Heirs of Paget Halpin, et al.
in the District Court, 38th Judicial District of Texas, for Medina county.
The State of Texas, to the Sheriff or any Constable of Medina county.
Greeting:

You are hereby commanded, that by making publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Medina once in each week for eight consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, you summon the heirs of Paget Halpin and the unknown heirs of the heirs of the said Paget Halpin, whose names and residences are unknown to plaintiff herein, to be and appear at the next regular term of the Honorable District Court of the 38th Judicial District of Texas, held in and for Medina county to be held at the Court House thereof, in the town of Hondo on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in September, A. D. 1915, the same being the first day of November, A. D. 1915, then and there to answer plaintiff's original petition filed in said Court on the first day of September, A. D. 1915, in suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 1775, wherein I. N. Johnson is plaintiff, and the heirs of Paget Halpin, and the unknown heirs of the heirs of the said Paget Halpin, are defendants; the nature of plaintiff's demand being substantially as follows, to-wit:

Plaintiff sues defendants in trespass to try title to recover the property herein-after described; plaintiff alleging briefly, that on the 3d day of July, A. D. 1915, he was seized and possessed and entitled to the possession of said land and premises, holding and owning the same in fee simple; that on August 3d, 1915, defendants unlawfully entered upon said land and premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom, and still unlawfully withhold from plaintiff the possession thereof, to his damage $5,000.00; that the land and premises withheld by defendants from plaintiff and for the recovery of which plaintiff sues, is described as follows, that is to say:

Situated in Medina county, Texas, known as Survey No. 482, on the waters of Deer Creek, a tributary of Aroo Seco and Frio River, about 16 miles S. 45 deg. W. from Hondo City, by virtue of Bounty Certificate No. 2325, issued to Thomas Tailor by Barnard E. Bee, Secretary of War, February 9, 1888; beginning at a stake the S. S. cor. of a 220 sur. No. 486 in sec. 6, made for Jos. Leyer for the S. W. cor. of this sur., a mesq. 8 inches brs.

No. 486, sec. 6 and the N. W. cor. of this sur. a mesq. 8 inches brs. S. 18 deg. E. 15 vrs. another 7 inches, brs. N. 38 deg. W. 16 vrs.; thence S. with E. line of No. 486 1344 vrs. to the place of beginning. That the aforesaid tract of land was purchased by plaintiff from the Virgil A. Johnson heirs on the 2d day of July, A. D. 1915, which deed is duly recorded in the deed records of Medina county, Texas, Book No. 51, page 281, and by which deed plaintiff acquired the title to said land and premises. That said Virgil A. Johnson died intestate leaving certain persons his heirs at law; that said plaintiff was one of said heirs and that his co-heirs conveyed said tract of land to him; that plaintiff's ancestor V. A. Johnson, acquired said land about twenty years ago at a tax sale.

In addition to alleging that plaintiff is the true and lawful owner in fee simple of said premises, plaintiff seeks to recover said land and premises by virtue of the statutes of limitations of five, ten and twenty years, respectively.

That the claim of said defendants to said tract of land is unknown to plaintiff further than the fact that the said defendants, according to the records of Medina county, Texas, are asserting, or pretending to assert, a title to said premises, for in this they have caused to be issued and placed of record in the deed records of Medina county, Texas, a patent from the State of Texas, No. 614, Vol. 16, dated December 13, 1906; said patent is issued by the State of Texas to the heirs of Paget Halpin, and is for said survey of land.

Wherefore plaintiff prays for judgment against said defendants for the title to, and possession of, said land and premises, decreeing that all the right, title and interest of said defendants in and to said land and premises, be cancelled, and that the same be divested out of them, and each of them, and be duly vested in plaintiff; that plaintiff have judgment against said defendants herein for the recovery of said land and premises and for their restitution to plaintiff, for his damages, and all costs of suit; and plaintiff prays for such other judgment and decree as the facts may warrant, and for general relief; all of which will more fully appear by reference to plaintiff's said original petition, now on file in my office.

Herein fail not, but have you before said court on the said first day of the next regular term thereof this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court at office in the town of Hondo this, the second day of September, A. D. 1915.

Issued September 2d, 1915.

Farmers' Union Warehouse Open for Business.

The Union Warehouse Co. of Hondo has employed me as manager for the season of 1915-16.

I opened the doors for the purpose of receiving cotton and cotton seed on August 16, and on account of having to finish my course in cotton grading I have employed my brother, Henry Crow, to look after the business, under bond, until I return from the cotton-grading school, when I will bring my certificate from the State, together with a Fidelity Bond of $7,500.00, which the State requires, to make the patrons secure on any business that they may do through the warehouse under my management.

On September 1st we will do business under the new State Warehouse Law, and this is the reason for the late opening.

3-31 J. W. CROW.

is cheap; and Devoe is not the only good paint; it is one of a dozen; and, very likely, the only one in your town — there are hundreds of middling and bad.

You can see what chance there is of another good one there; perhaps one in ten at the most.

Bad paint is dearest; middling is dear; costs 2 or 3 times as much as the best.

No matter about the cost a gallon; that isn't it; the cost a square foot; the cost a job; better yet, the cost a year.

There's a whole education in paint in this advertisement.
